Feedback

The Exchange Programme is evaluated by both the participants and their tutors. Results of the evaluation for the exchanges realised in 2009 show that 91% of participants and 98% of tutors generally considered the Exchange Programme as very satisfactory or satisfactory.

Whether undertaken in the language of the hosting country (57.2%) or in a different common language (42.8%) an exchange provides a unique experience from a linguistic point of view, as participants become directly acquainted with legal terminology in a different European language.

Most participants (99.5%) were very satisfied or satisfied with the impact of the exchange regarding their improved knowledge of the hosting jurisdiction and the feeling of pertaining to a common judicial culture and mutual trust (92%).

Study visits implemented in 2010 should also be seen as a great success. Expectations of 94% of the participants at a study visit at ECHR and on Joint Investigation Teams resulted in 97% expressing themselves to be satisfied or very satisfied with the content of these activities.

All participants and tutors alike requested the continuation of the Programme.

According to an Italian judge on exchange in Bulgaria:

"The exchange has helped me to understand that the Bulgarian system of criminal law and criminal procedure is really very similar to the Italian one. For this reason now I have a higher confidence in the Bulgarian system, in their sentences and of course in the possibility to cooperate with that country's magistrates".

According to an Austrian judge in a study visit at ECHR:

"A big plus of the study visit is the mixture of participants (...) this fact enriches the discussions very much. The study visit is to be recommended for judges and prosecutors from all levels of the judiciaries. [...] The personal contact and confrontation of judges and prosecutors with the European institutions is the best way to produce confidence and acceptance for Europe and European law."

Practical details

Application and selection procedure

A call for applications to the Exchange Programme is circulated annually through partner training institutions and the EJTN website. EJTN works with its partners to pre-select and allocate applicants according to available places in the participating countries.

Participants' costs during the exchange as well as their travel expenses are covered by EJTN.

Exchange Programme for Judicial Authorities

What is the EJTN Exchange Programme?

The European Judicial Training Network (EJTN) has been running the Exchange Programme for judicial authorities for several years. Dedicated to the European judiciary, it allows European judges, prosecutors, judicial trainers as well as future judges and prosecutors to become immersed in the work of their counterparts in another European country.

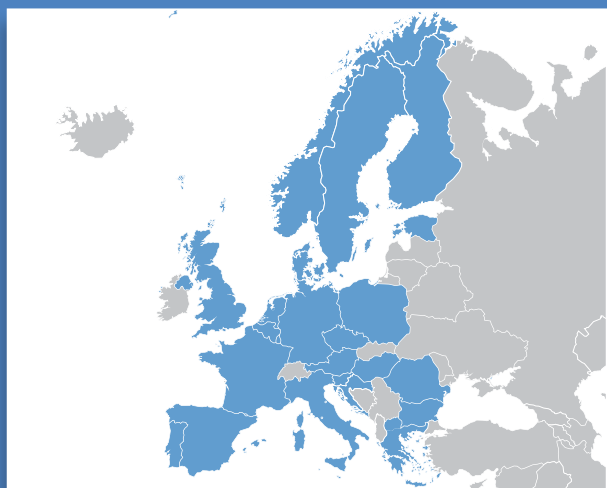

The Exchange Programme was initiated by the European Parliament with the objective to develop mutual trust between judicial authorities by getting to know each others' judicial systems better and by working together. This Programme is financed by the European Commission through an annual grant awarded to EJTN.

The first Exchange Programme was implemented in 2005. In 2006, the European Commission granted EJTN a de-facto monopoly position for the implementation of exchanges between judicial authorities.

In 2010, 667 judges and prosecutors from all over Europe benefited from the EJTN Exchange Programme. In 2011, this number should rise to approximately 950.

Participating countries

Through a network of 34 partner training institutions, EJTN can offer exchanges in 25 European states:

Exchange Programme Activities

The Exchange Programme is open to judges and public prosecutors at all levels and pertains to all jurisdictions (including civil, criminal and administrative), judicial trainers as well as to future judges and prosecutors. They can take part in different activities:

- Short-term exchanges in the court/prosecutor's office/judicial institution of another country. The general length of short-term exchanges is 10 working days. They are organised either on an individual basis where the visiting judge/prosecutor shadows a counterpart in his/her daily practice or as a group exchange, where the visiting judges/prosecutors learn about the hosting country's legal system and jurisdiction with similar professionals from around Europe. Judicial trainers can also take part in an exchange in another training institution.

- Long-term exchanges (3 months to 1 year) at the Court of Justice of the European Union, the European Court of Human Rights (ECHR) and Eurojust. Selected judges and prosecutors are assigned to the office of a National Member (Eurojust), to the Cabinet of a Member of the Court (CJEU) or to the Registry (ECHR) to become acquainted with the work, procedures and decisions of these Europe-wide bodies.

- Study visits in European bodies or focused on a specific topic: these one-week study visits allow judges and prosecutors to improve their knowledge of the functioning of institutions such as the ECHR or Eurojust or specific judicial cooperation instruments such as Joint Investigation Teams.

- Initial training study visits are one-week study visits specifically designed for future judges/prosecutors and enable them to participate in the training given to judicial students in the judicial training institution of another country and exchange with them on common judicial issues.

Facts and figures

Exchange Programme growth

Over the period 2005–2010, almost 2200 European judges and prosecutors have benefited from an exchange through the Exchange Programme.

The number of exchanges has increased over the last 3 years. They almost doubled between 2009 and 2010 – and an increase of more than 33% is anticipated in 2011.

Over the last 3 years, important efforts have been made to develop new activities within the Exchange Programme.

From 2007 onwards, long-term exchanges were offered at Eurojust, the Court of Justice of the European Union and the European Court of Human Rights.

2010 was another landmark for the Exchange Programme with the launch of two new initiatives. For the first time, study visits were organised in cooperation with EU bodies (ECHR and CEPOL). A specific initial training scheme was also developed and allowed future judges and prosecutors from 12 European countries to participate in judicial exchanges.

Representation of European judges and prosecutors

Judges and prosecutors from across Europe and pertaining to all levels and types of jurisdictions (including criminal, civil and administrative) directly benefit from the project by participating in a judicial exchange. Since 2010, the Exchange Programme contains a specific initial training scheme, which allows future judges and prosecutors from 12 European states to participate in judicial exchanges.
